

For Immediate Release

Chicago, IL USA
March 2, 2015

BANISTER INTERNATIONAL announces global expansion plans

The highly acclaimed executive search firm Banister International, driven by strong market growth and successful client engagements has announced it will expand significantly to increase capacity and more effectively serve global markets.

The newly formed Banister global operating group, BHI BOS Management LLC (BHI), is in the process of adding senior level client partners and high level researchers and consultants to support the expansion.

The Banister brand grew out of an initiative by CDI Corporation (a major USA NYSE listed company) over a decade ago to create a senior level executive search group and is now a standalone company. Today it is managed by its original founders who have an outstanding track record of success in the executive search industry, are recognized worldwide for high ethical and professional standards and have exceptional general business experience. The firm is a pioneer in deeply research based candidate selection and is the industry's gold standard for client service.

The steady evolution and success of Banister in the USA, Europe, the Middle East and Asia Pacific to date provides a sound basis for the present increased growth in selected key geographical markets and important industry sectors.

According to Banister CEO Patrick Sylvester and BHI Managing Director Thomas Acuff, "we are gratified by the support of our clients which drives this expansion and by the calibre of additional client partners and others we are now attracting to our business. We are committed to continuation of the highest standards of client satisfaction and to serving our markets globally in a seamless manner".

For additional information please contact Erika Levi, Director of Administrations at 847-715-2009.